DETAILED ACTION

Claims 43-60, 62, 65-80, and 82 are pending.

Claims 44, 45, 48-50, 54, 57-60, 62, 70, 71, and 76 remain withdrawn from consideration. Claims 55 and 56 are no longer withdrawn from consideration since the claims have been amended to depend from claim 43.

Claims 43, 46, 47, 51-53, 65-69, 72-75, 77-80, and 82 are currently under examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 43, 46, 47, 51-53, 65-69, 72-75, and 77-82 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The previous grounds of rejection have been overcome in view of applicants amendments to the claims. The grounds of rejection below are new grounds based on applicants amendments to the claims.

Claims 43, 80 and 82 all recite "a step comprising" (i), (ii), and (iii) in part (c) of each claim. The language renders the claim vague and indefinite since "a step" ie a single step can not comprise all steps (i), (ii), and (iii). The language also lends to improper Markush language where, if the intent of the limitation is to select from (i), (ii) and (iii), then the term comprising leave one in the art left with an unidentified group where the groups to select from comprises (i), (ii) and (iii) but is not limited thereto where the potential other constituents of the group are unidentified.

Claim 66 recites "wherein the at least one organism marker" There is insufficient antecedent basis for this language in the claim.

Claim 69 recites "wherein the at least one organism marker" There is insufficient antecedent basis for this language in the claim.

Those claim indicated as rejected and not specifically treated above are rejected in so far as they depend from the claims addressed above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims 43, 46, 47, 51-53,55, 56, 65-69, 72-75, 77-80 and 82 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Stein et al [Journal of Bacteriology Vol. 178(3):591-599, 1996].

Stein et al have disclosed the characterization of uncultivated prokaryotes where the organism samples were obtained directly from an aquatic environment. Genomic nucleic acid samples were selected and placed into libraries. The uncultivated organism samples were subject to various selections such as size selection. For example, 30 liter samples were filtered to select for organisms and these samples were further subject to concentration of the desired organisms (see material and methods at page 592 and see also page 593 "Results" . It is disclosed that some samples were collected for rRNA abundance analysis. Nucleic acids were screened for rDNA. Nucleic acid samples were placed into vectors where digested nucleic acids of 35-45kpb were selected.

Vectors were placed into E.coli and this organism sample was selected for plasmid containing cells(it is noted that this organism sample represents a heterologous population since, for example the initial population subjected to selection either contained fosmids/plasmids or did not and also contained different fosmids/plasmids, for example). The population or sample was selected for, first cells that contain fosmids and then further selected for clones that contained 16S rDNA. This sample was even further subcloned where the clones contained gene clusters(see page 594, for example.). rDNA containing samples were selected utilizing primers. Nucleic acid samples were selected based on nucleic acid content including 16S RNA and it is disclosed that the sample contained a specified content of C+C content. See entire Materials and Methods section and also Figure 1 which shows various organism and nucleic acid selection steps and well as Figure 2 which shows selection of nucleic acids. See also Table 1. See also top of right column on page 595 and right column of page 596, for example.

Applicant arguments filed 6/10/2011 have been considered but are not persuasive. Applicant argues that filtration is not a selection means. This is not agreed with. Filtration selects based on size. Size is a morphological marker, for example. Applicant points to page 18 and 27-30 of the specification. It is noted that at page 18 it is asserted that ““organism marker” may be exemplified, but not limited tone of the following. ..” Applicants specifications and claims do not exclude size as an organism marker. (see specification at page 18, for example). It is noted that it is not only the initial samples of stein et al that have been selected and manipulated. It is noted that the claims read broadly on the methods involved in selection of bacteria utilized in nucleic acid manipulations, for example. For example "catalogued comprises any library, including libraries with one consituent, that is characterized with respect to its constituents (see pages 11 and 14). “Adjusting to advantage” includes no adjustment (see page 14). “an organism form includes E.col1 (see page 12). A fraction includes 100% (see page 13).

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
